An Invitation from Archbishop Pérez

Learn more about a new way forward together for the Catholic Church of Philadelphia

MISSIONARY HUB PLANNING PROCESS: The Archdiocese Strategy Office and Catholic Leadership Institute released videos to answer questions about the Missionary Hub Planning Process, which was announced earlier this year through Archbishop Pérez' Pastoral Letter, at the core of which is a call to a pastoral change of heart, a conversion to the lifestyle and mindset of a missionary disciple. The letter also shares with us the Archbishop's vision for the future of the Church of Philadelphia and an invitation to all Catholics to be a part of the conversation about what that will look like. For information about Info Sessions, to access the videos and to read the Archbishop's letter visit www.trustandhope.org.

Call it inspiration – a father’s inspiration. Under my father’s tutelage, I learned to play golf. In fact, I didn’t just play golf – I studied it! And this was in the days long before Tiger Woods. As golfers back in the day, my father and I didn’t belong to a country club, but we did belong to an exclusive club. As a kid growing up in a city row house, while my friends were trying to get an orange colored ball through a fairly large hoop, I was trying to get a tiny white ball into a little hole far away. In school, I read books and wrote reports on the legends: Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino, and of course, Arnold Palmer. Palmer, a Latrobe, Pennsylvania native, was a hero to my father, who was a loyal member of “Arnie’s Army.” I would enjoy watching tournaments televised, such as the Masters or US Open (concluding this weekend at Oakmont out by Pittsburgh), with my father on weekend afternoons. I was entertained by Chi-Chi Rodriguez’ playful “matador routine” staged on the green when he dropped a putt and familiar with Gary Player’s trademark, black, clerical-like attire. Hmmmm, maybe “Father” Gary had a heretofore unknown influence upon me too. Student of golf that I was, I learned about its history and the development of clubs from wooden shafts to steel and later graphite. There were soft-cover balls such as those sold by Titleist and hard-cover balls marketed by Top Flite. I quickly learned the meaning of “fore,” but really never quite the meaning of “hole-in-one” – which I’m still trying to understand. It was either a father’s great pride in his son or else, I missed my true calling – in my father’s desire that I play golf professionally – as in PGA (Professional Golf Association). I couldn’t picture myself in Arnie’s combat boots or having a little shtick like Chi-Chi. I suppose that I would have then eventually gone to a school like Coastal Carolina University honing my course skills while studying “professional golf management.” My father wasn’t upset that I didn’t pursue a PGA career. He readily and fully understood that it was not his life to live, but mine. You have to be our own man, he would remind me. He was a bit perplexed at first though, with what I did choose. It was a “game” of sorts that he didn’t quite get – except for the Gary Player part. But that would change. The “hole-in-one” of meeting a pope and future saint helped. As a retired member of Arnie’s Army, he now swore loyalty to the one that I was in.

On this Father’s Day, remember to thank your dad! Thank him for his love and help; his guidance and direction in a life that he knows is ultimately yours to live. Then consider: where will a father’s inspiration lead you? Wherever it is, I hope that you too get a “hole-in-one!” Thanks, Dad! And Happy Father’s Day!

Peace!

Fr. Wilson
